Permanent Pier Probable

OFFICIAL ACTION TAKEN TO RETAIN NEW M. B. STRUCTURE

It is altogether possible and very likely probable that the present pier now being built at Mission Beach (for the construction of an outfall for the sewer system) will be made a permanent structure. Acting upon a suggestion made early this week by councilman Louis C. Maire to the editor of "The Beach News," the matter of retaining the pier was presented to the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday night and met with enthusiastic approval.

Through the courtesy of Judge De Long, chairman of the meeting, "Ye Editor" (who is a member of the M. B. Chamber) was extended the privilege of the floor and incidentally took occasion to call special attention to the fact that "The Beach News" has always been and is now and will continue to be ever to the fore in promoting the welfare and progress of the beach districts inclusive of Mission Beach, Ocean Beach, Pacific Beach and Point Loma. Announcement was made that this paper and its staff, both personally and publicly, is closely identified with each section as alphabetically listed and stands firm in the belief that any advancement of one is ultimately beneficial to all.

In this connection, the possibility of retaining the present pier under construction at Mission Beach was presented, Councilman Maire having informed "Ye Editor" that the structure would be kept intact if the community desired it and proper provision was made for flooring and railings. Upon motion, the matter was referred to the Improvement committee of the M. B. Chamber with instructions to promote the idea.

The pier will ultimately extend about a thousand feet or so into the ocean, several hundred feet being already in place. It is some sixteen or more feet wide and with the right sort of flooring and guard rails it would make an excellent fishing and recreation pier. It is stated that City Manager Rhodes has said that it will cost almost as much to remove the pier as it has to build it and it is quite advisable to retain the structure for the public.

GROCER G. H. FABER INSTALLS NEW SYSTEM AT LITTLE CASH GROCERY

Keeping step at the head of the prosperity procession, the enterprising and popular groceryman, G. H. Faber, is making modern improvements in his "Little Cach Grocery" on Newport avenue. The entire interior has been changed in conformity with a "help yourself" plan that affords excellent convenience and thorough satisfaction to customers. Counters and shelving have been arranged for the proper display of provisions of all kinds and each section has been well stocked with choice foodstuffs and the prices are plainly marked. The modern idea of self-service wil be fully and fairly carried forth in every department at Faber's Little Cach Grocery, where courteous treament is assured by Manager C. M. Cole who is in charge of this particular store in the Faber chain of four groceries—three in Ocean Beach and one in Mission Beach.

OLD JUNE

June once brought us too much rain—
Roses we had prayed for!
Life once offered too deep pain—
Joy we thought we'd paid for.

Was there then no rose in bloom?
There were roses everywhere.
For rain and roses June made room
As life drew joyances from care.

"GREED" TONIGHT HEADS SPLENDID LIST OF NEW BOOKINGS

With the production of the dramatic marvel, "Greed," tonight (Saturday) at the Ocean Theatre, the attractions for next week are of an exceptionally high calibre. On Sunday Mary Philbin will be seen as "The Gaiety Girl" and on Tuesday and Wednesday Pola Negri comes as "The Charmer" and for the week-end Baby Peggy will appear with a big cast in "The Family Secret."

BUILDING PROJECTS REFLECT SURBURBAN AND CITY PROSPERITY

It is very worthy of recording on the highest authority that San Diego's sound prosperity is strongly reflected in the steady stream of construction enterprises recorded at the building permit office at the city hall. Steady issuance of permits for home, apartment houses, bungalow courts and business buildings marks the consistent increase in newcomers to San Diego and the growing efforts of those who have made this city their home for some time toward business and residential improvements.

In every part of the city and its environs construction projects are under way. There is no boom—no speculative building. Rather a substantial, financially sound program of construction that presages properity for San Diego in all its varied lines of business.

GIRLS TO PLAY BASEBALL AT MISSION BEACH IN BATHING SUITS

Indoor baseball played outdoors, bathing suits instead of the conventional uniform and buxom young women at bat and in the field is the interesting prospect for pleasure seekers at the Mission Beach Amusement Center tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon.

The game will be between the Mission Beach Casinos and the Klindt All-Stars, and will be called at 3 o'clock.

Bathing suits as uniforms were selected for two reasons—first, because they are less cumbersome and more attractive and, second, because some of the outfielders may be compelled to chase into the surf after the oversized ball.

Mission Beach News Notes

By MRS. F. G. GREENFIELD
726 Ormond Court
Special Representative
For "The Beach News"

Last Thusday evening Mr. and Mrs. Irving M. Smith of 810 Manhattan court, were given a pleasant dinner surprise party by a host of friends in honor of their early departure by auto for Chicago. The evening was spent playing progressive 500. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Billie Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Grace Garrison, Mr. Bertram Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Patton, Mr. T. B. Hill and Mr. Mrs. I. M. Smith. At the conclusion of the evenings fun, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were presented with an "Icy Hot thermos bottle" for their trip.

J. E. Franks has installed a desk at his home in Mission Beach on Santa Clara place, where he transacts a real estate business in beach property.

As a fire protective measure for the benefit of each and every section of Mission Beach, I beg to refer to Judge Chas. B. DeLong's suggestion for temporary relief, until such time as the city see's fit to install other protection, towit: That each resident purchase large size garden hose, 50 feet in length, which with the heavy water pressure here, will ward off fire hazzard.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Teal, formerly of San Bernardino, have purchased the lease of Postmaster Challand's fine new flats over the Post Office, on Mission boulevard. Mr. Teal is furnishing them beautifully and they will be ready for guests this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Albright of the "Garden of Eden" Ranch, Spring Valley, were guests at the I. M. Smith home last Sunday.

YOUR CO-OPERATION, PLEASE

As chairman of the publicity committee of the M. B. Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. F. G. Greenfield, is greatly taxed for time and her duties of preparing publication copy are very arduous. The help of our patrons will be highly appreciated in the matter of submitting news items for "The Beach News" if they will leave their notes for Mrs. Greenfield in the care of Mrs. Frank Challand at the Mission Beach post office and please write on one side of the paper only. We thank you! Send in your items good folks, and let's all boost and BOOST!!!!

Mrs. W. F. England of Rockaway Court, with a few friends journeyed to Venice and took in all the Beach resorts near by. A jolly time was had by all.

Mrs. W. L. Skelly entertained Miss Linda Brunso of Santee and Miss Edna Porter of Hillsdale over the week-end.

The "Alexanders," prominent in the automobile business in Phoenix, Arizona, have motored here to enjoy Mission Beach this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Challand sold eighteen lots in Pacific Beach last week. They are keeping extensive interests in Mission Beach, realizing the big future of our community.

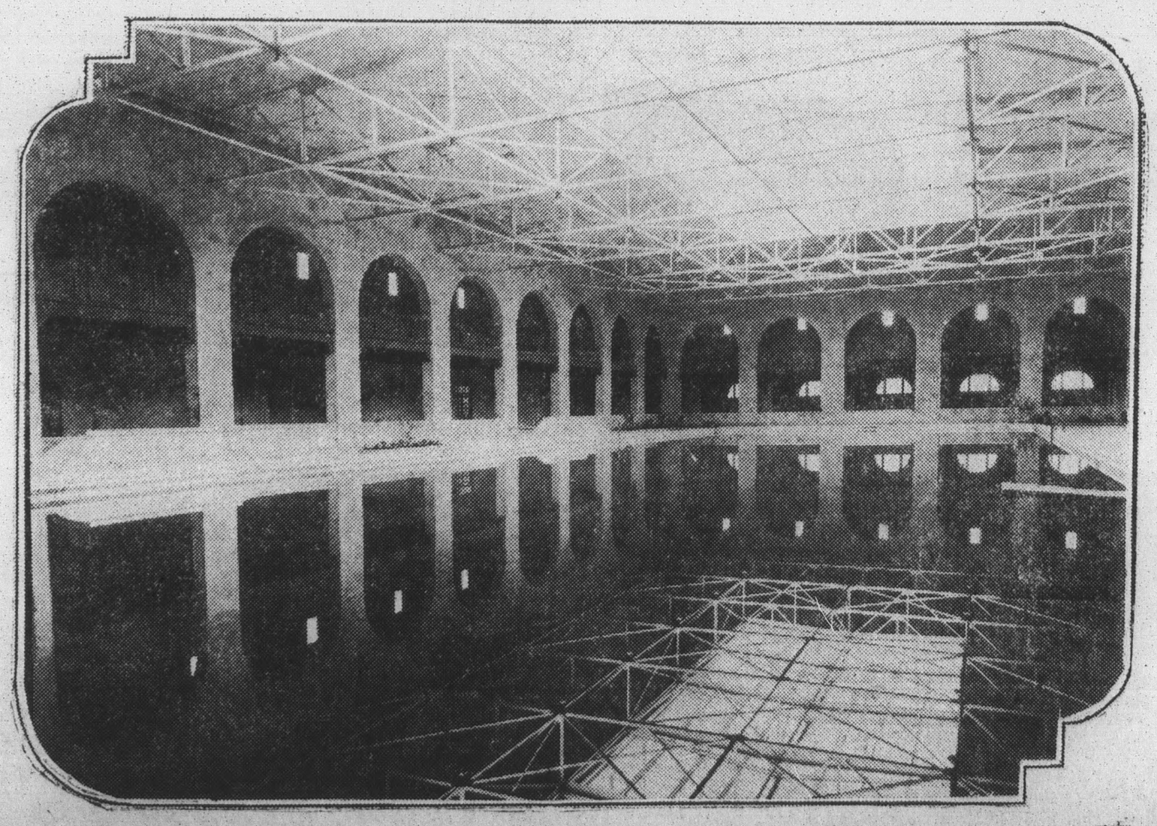

Mrs. Van Dorstan, one of our leading realty dealers, spent last week in Los Angeles on a business and pleasure trip combined.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Bell motored from San Francisco to visit the Frank Challands here. They are quite enthusiastic over our wonderful resort and cannot sing too many praises of the natural resources and splendid amusement zone.

TURN THIS UPSIDE DOWN—IT LOOKS THE SAME

This picture is remarkable for the clarity with which all details are mirrored in the water. It shows the arches, walls, lights and windows of the Mission Beach Bathhouse reflected in the still waters of the plunge. The photograph was taken by L. K. Dewein, who made a thirty-second exposure. Turn the picture upside down and the effect is the same.

FROM AFAR

I had not known our skies were blue
Until I'd traveled far.
I wonder what I found to do
That never I brought down to you
The light of sun or star.

I had not known our roses sweet
Until from you I'd gone.
I wonder why our idle feet
So seldom found a way to meet
Home's wild-rose fields upon.

I had not heard our home birds sing
Until remembrance thrilled.
I wonder how we friends could bring
A moment's sadness to young spring
There where our own larks trilled.

Dear, here are gifts sent, fair and rare!
Though Death held us apart,
Sunbeams and stargleams should you wear
With June's bud-roses in your hair,
June's bird-song in your heart.

TRAINING TROOP OF OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL SCORES TOP MARK

Ocean Beach school was declared the winner over a field of fourteen schools taking part in Boy Scout training work for the season just ended.

During the five months of activities Ocean Beach school developed scouts in grades as follows: Fifteen tenderfeet, seven second-class and fourteen first-class. Of the fourteen first-class scouts ten are striving for merit badges and four have received star scout awards.

One hundred and seventy scouts passed the tenderfoot test, seventy-eight the second-class test and thirty-five the first-class test during the training period. Just 3160 tests have been passed by the fourteen troops and 303 scouts registered. This makes an average of eleven tests passed by each scout.

SUMMER CAMP PROMISES TO BE LIVELY FOR BOY SCOUTS

Summer camp spirit is high in the hearts of every scout in San Diego at the present time, and it is expected that in another week or so there will be from 400 to 500 scouts in the summer training camp at Cuyamaca lake.

This year's camp will be conducted along somewhat different lines from previous camps, the patrol leader being given more authority and the patrol being the unit of organization. The camp program will be filled with scouting activities from reveille to taps.

HONORS BESTOWED UPON SUPT. A. E. HOLLOWAY OF GAS AND ELECTRIC CO.

Telegraphic information from San Francisco early this week stated that A. E. Holloway, president of the Chamber of Commerce and superintendent of the San Diego Consolidated Gas & Electric Co., who is attending the annual convention of the National Electric Light association in the northern city, has been named a member of the executive committee of the Pacific Coast Electrical association.

Mr. Halloway has been active in the commercial department of the coast association in organizing it on the plan of the national association, while he was chairman last year.

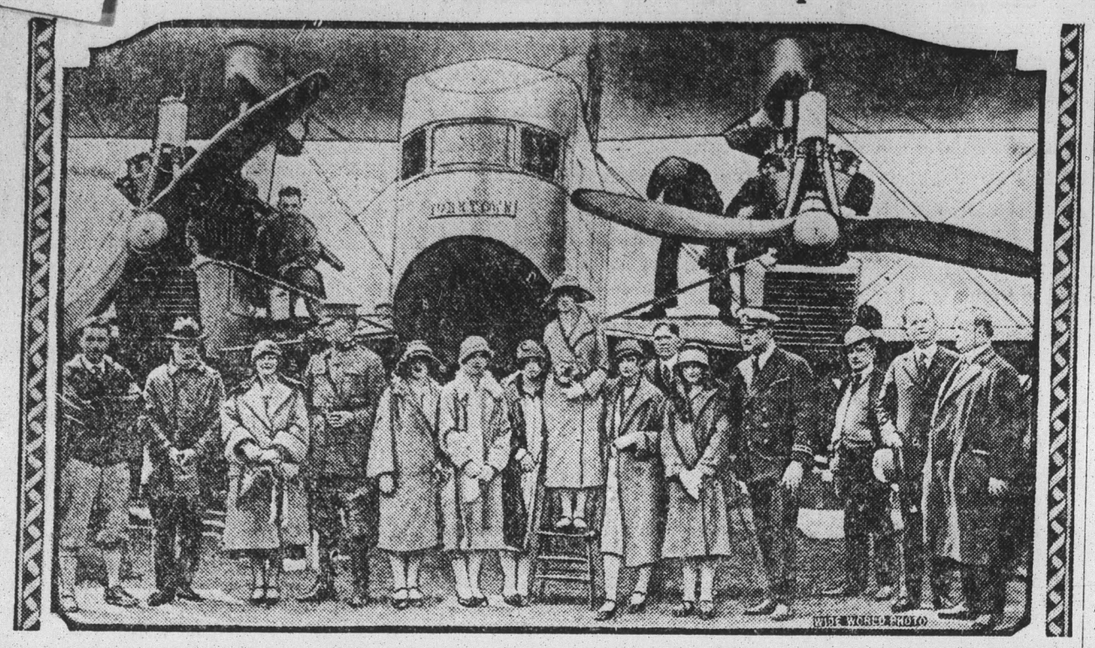

W. A. Cyr of the San Diego Electric Co. is also in attendance at the national convention and upon his return will report the highlights of interest to the members of the San Diego Electric club.

FINELY EQUIPPED FIRST AID STATION AT MISSION BEACH

Characteristic of the thoroughness of equipment and facilities of the Amusement Center at Mission Beach are the provisions for first aid treatment of patrons who for any reason may requre medical or emergency attention.

A splendidly equipped first aid station, located at the north end of the bathhouse on the avenue known as Camino de Norte, has an attendant constantly in charge. There are two entrances, one on the avenue and the other at the west end of the kiddies' pool, inside the bathhouse. Both entrances are plainly marked. The first aid station has equipment as complete as will be found in any physician's office. H. L. Reama, natatorium lifeguard, who is skilled in first aid service, is in charge of the station. The lifeguard personnel also includes Geo. Evans, an expert swimmer, whose duties keep him on the beach continually during bathing hours, and Louis Fleetwood, swimming instructor. All are proficient in rescue work and first aid servce. Addtional lifeguards are on duty at Mission Beach on holidays, or whenever the occasion requires.

Community Building

Playground Great Need of Every Community

Of 19,000 and more inquiries on public recreation received by the Playground and Recreation Association of America in 1924, one-third came from communities of 2,500 population or less.

That such places are more alive to the necessity of planning for recreation than ever before is clear, but anything like complete statistics on the number of parks, playgrounds and other recreation facilities established as a result of this interest are unavailable. This article, therefore, is not a survey of small-town recreation, but a brief review of typical achievements. The facts are taken from the current files of the Playground and Recreation Association of America and from publications of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Recreation facilities in small towns include mainly parks, playgrounds, athletic fields, community houses, picnic grounds, tennis courts, bathing beaches and swimming pools. Tourist camps also are common. In many instances, the recreation facilities combine several features. Parks, for instance, often have within their area playgrounds, athletic fields and swimming pools or other facilities.

In the majority of the towns studied, recreation is financed by public subscription. Yet instances of successful municipal maintenance demonstrate the feasibility of tax support. It is scarcely necessary to say that leadership for recreation in the small town is just as essential as in the city. The success of the program usually varies with the competence of the management.

Town Has Found Park Profitable Investment

Wamego, Kans., has a population of only 1,585, but in 1904, as a result of a bond election, it purchased 12 acres of land for park purposes at a cost of $2,525. Recently the park board purchased 3 adjoining acres at a cost of $2,000 for use as a tourist camp ground. Improvements include an artificial lake 4½ feet deep with an area of 1½ acres, used for boating and bathing; a wading pool, electric fountain 45 feet in diameter and 27 feet high; a women's rest house, a men's comfort house, band stand, dancing pavilion, playground equipment, three drinking fountains, dining tables, steel range, baseball, football and basketball fields, and other facilities. It is maintained by town funds at an average yearly expense of $1,500. This includes the salaries of caretaker and janitor for seven months.

The only charge made for the park is for entertainments for gain. The revenue comes from licenses for shows and from the church, school and general welfare fund. The park is extensively used.—Exchange.

Value of Paved Streets

The stranger forms his opinion of a town by its streets, schools and churches. We have the schools and churches but some of our streets would be more pleasing if they were moved. In fact, there really should not be an unpaved street in the city limits. Paved streets increase the value of all property and are an asset to the community, equal to adequate schools and churches. With Sheffield fast coming into the great industrial district its founders visioned years ago, we should think of our streets and effect a way to pave them.—Sheffield Standard.

Drayton's Good Idea

Drayton, N. D., population 637, has a 40-acre field which cost $8,000. The sum was subscribed by 260 people living in five townships. The subscribers organized a park association, a non-profit-sharing enterprise with each shareholder having one vote. A baseball diamond, bleachers, picnic benches, electric lights and water supply to constitute some of the equipment. Plans call for additional facilities. The activities include special day celebrations, bathing and boating, parties, dancing, athletics and band concerts.

Home-Town Loyalty

An ounce of loyalty is worth several pounds of prosperity. Once you get a man boosting for his home town you actually have contributed to its material wealth, besides adding one more person to the list whose forward-looking and forward-acting in conjunction with his fellow boosters means more population, more institutions, more business, a greater town or city, and in this instance, a greater Camp Hill.—Tallapoosa News.

"Etiquette" Extraordinary

In a book of etiquette published in 1480, directions are given as to how to grab the meat with the hands. The writer advises the use of three fingers only, and among his "don'ts" are: "Don't keep the hand too long feeling about in the dish; don't take too large a piece; don't wipe the fingers on the coat."

Invented Friction Match

John Walker, an English chemist, made the first friction match in 1827.

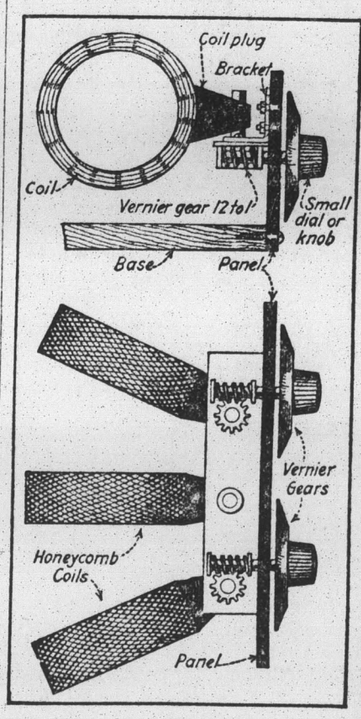

Mounting That Is Very Easily Made

Three-Coil Variable Any Experimenter Can Build; It Is Satisfactory.

One of the most difficult instruments to construct so that it will operate smoothly and have a fine control is a three-coil variable mounting. In the sketch is shown a mounting that any experimenter may make, which should be satisfactory.

The vernier gears shown are taken from a discarded mandolin or may be purchased at a hardware store. The sub-panel that the gears are mounted upon is of bakelite or hard rubber and should be about four inches in length. The two brackets that hold this sub-panel to the panel of the set are made of brass strips ¼ inch wide and 1-16 inch thick.

The first operation in the construction of this mounting is to drill the sub-panel as shown. Dimensions will not be given here as they depend upon the type of gears used and also the type of coils. However, a precaution might be mentioned. Be careful in drilling the sub-panel to keep the drill at right angles to the sub-panel so that the shafts of the gears will run true. As may be seen in the sketches, the worm parts of the gearing system are attached to the dials of the set.

Attaching the coils to the gears may be done in any number of ways. The simplest is to drill a hole in the standard mounting that comes with the coils of such a size that they may be fastened securely to the vertical shafts of the gears. It will be found that this system of mounting honeycomb or spider-web coils is one of the best that has yet been tried.—Radio News.

Glass Antenna Can Be Made of Towel Rods

A cheap and efficient antenna insulator can be easily made as shown in the sketch. Procure glass towel rods, which may be purchased at any plumbing establishment, about 15 inches in length. Two blocks of wood for each insulator 5 inches square and ¾ inch thick are drilled as follows: In the middle of the block a hole slightly smaller than the rod and through the block perpendicular to the large hole two holes large enough to take a ¼-inch bolt ¾ inch from the top and bottom of the block. The blocks are then sawed in half through the three holes. The glass rod is placed between the two halves of a block and fastened there by tightening the bolts through the small holes. The supporting wires of the antenna may be fastened to the bolts.—Radio News.

Antenna Insulator Made of Blocks of Wood and Glass Rod.

When and How to Add Water to "A" Battery

If water is added to the storage "A" battery when it is nearly discharged, it is likely to run out of the vents in the filler caps when the battery reaches full charge. This is due to the quantity of bubbles which form in the solution and greatly increase its bulk.

In most batteries, the separators between the plates extend up above the level of the top edge of the plates so that it is only necessary to keep the acid solution just above the separators. Water can be added after the battery is fully charged.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

FINDING FAULT

IT IS a lamentable evidence of weakness in mortals when they deliberately shift the blame for their own shortcomings upon the shoulders of others.

This not uncommon infirmity exhibits what is smallest and worst in character with ugly, repulsive colors such as strong, honorable men studiously avoid.

The human who is always making flimsy excuses, shunning responsibility, seeking consolation for his delinquencies by shifting his faults to where they do not belong, is not destined to sit in the high places or take prominent parts in making a brighter and better world.

He disbelieves in the doctrine of excellence and accepts without any qualm of conscience the dogma of Luck, and then in his sublime foolishness sits in his easy chair and grumbles because Luck fails to bring him the exalted position in society to which he imagines himself justly entitled.

Instead of taking off his coat, rolling up his sleeves, and doing his best, he folds his puny, insufficient arms and thus, without realizing it, openly admits his impotence to cope with the essential things of life, intended by the wise Creator to develop his character and take him to pleasant pastures.

To deal openly, to accept defeat and admit that no one else is to blame for the miscarriage of his cherished plans, is the manly thing to do, even though he may experience a shameful sense of humiliation.

Behavior of this kind makes better men and women. It gives all of us a clearer insight into our frailties, and if we have within us the right spirit, we can soon pull ourselves from the shadows and step with assurance into the glorious sunshine.

The man or woman who habitually blames others, misses the lovable and beautiful in life, and loses the lofty, soul-stirring inspiration which comes and carries him or her to certain victory.

To be honest, successful, good-hearted, steer your ship far away from the treacherous shoals of fault-finding, upon which are wrecked every year thousands of lives.

It is the fault-finder that fills the divorce courts with sobs and tears, crushes loving hearts by robbing them of their sweetest joys and intimacies, while going up and down the world like a roaring lion.

MA ON SAVING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WELL, Pa is talking saving, too—
I like to hear him rave;
I hope when Pa is good and through
He'll really start to save.
This ain't no spender I have got;
But, like a lot of men,
Whenever he has saved a lot
He blows it in again.

He saves it here, he saves it there,
He saves on this or that;
And that is why I have to wear
A 1920 hat.
And then some fellah comes along
With some gigantic scheme,
And Father listens to his song
And spends it on a dream.

To save is better than to spend
But saving ain't enough:
The thing that matters in the end
Is where you put the stuff.
Don't try for twenty-five per cent,
A fortune in a week;
I wish I had what Pa has spent
For rainbows, so to speak

Just put a little in the bank
Or else the building loan,
Not hand it to some crazy crank,
Some man you've never known
Go buy a bond, or buy a lot,
Or something you can see,
Right spending after all is what
Is real economy

SUMMER PIES

A GOOD rich pastry is much easier digested than one which lacks shortening and is tough. Pastry should be quickly made, handled as little as possible, and baked in a hot oven. Take one cupful of shortening to three cupfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, and just enough ice water to hold the mixture together. Cut the fat into the flour using two knives; when it is like meal, add the water, roll out and line the pastry tin. The one-crust pie is the most wholesome and popular for warm weather.

Currant Pie.

Take two cupfuls of ripe currants, crush them and add one cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs slightly beaten, and a tablespoonful of flour mixed with four tablespoonfuls of water. Bake the shell and fill with the above mixture which has been cooked five minutes. Cover with a meringue, using the egg whites, a fourth of a teaspoonful of baking powder and four tablespoonfuls of sugar, the two last ingredients stirred in at the last. Brown slightly in a moderate oven.

Blueberry Meringue Pie.

Take one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and the yolks of two eggs. Beat together and add three cupfuls of blueberries. Bake with one crust and cover with a meringue after the pie is baked, using the whites of the eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and any flavoring liked. Less sugar may be used and half a dozen marshmallows, cut into halves placed about on the top of the meringue before baking.

SCHOOL DAYS

Your Last Name

IS IT BASSETT?

IN ENGLAND the Bassetts are a well known Cornish family; that is to say they have been from time out of mind associated with affairs in Cornwall and have intermarried for centuries with families of that county until one could hardly imagine Cornwall without the Bassetts.

But we must look beyond Cornwall to find the origin of the Bassetts. In fact they came from Normandy, as can be well enough proved by the fact that the name of Thurston Basset, a companion of William the Conqueror, is found on the roll of Battle Abbey.

Since the days of the Plantagenets the Bassetts have been seated at Tehidy, the seat of the present representative of the family in England. In a list of the prominent Cornish families with whom the Bassetts have intermarried you find such names as Trenouth, Trengove, Trelawny, Marrys, Enys, Carveth, Godolphin, Prideaux, Grenville and Rashleigh. Some of these once prominent families have since become extinct, but their blood runs in the veins of the Bassetts.

The two most distinguished members of the family in England are said to be Sir Francis Bassett, vice admiral and sheriff of Cornwall in the time of Charles I; and another Sir Francis Bassett, first baron of Dunstanville in the time of King George III, noted chiefly for his opposition to the American colonists just before the breaking out of our Revolution. He held out persistently against peace with the American colonies.

The first of the name in this country was William Bassett, who sailed from England on the "Fortune" in 1621. He lived first at Duxbury, but settled eventually at Bridgewater. He was associated with the chief dignitaries of the colony. His son William Bassett, second, was a close friend of Governors Winslow and Hinckley and appointed them joint guardians of his children just before his early death.

A prominent member of the Bassett family here was Richard Bassett, governor of Delaware, about the time of the Revolution.

THE TOWER MYSTERY

"IF ONE spot more than any other should be haunted, that place is assuredly the Tower of London," says Charles G. Harper in his new book, "Haunted Houses," published this spring by J. B. Lippincott company.

"The very remarkable story told in 1860 by Edward Lenthal Swifte, sometime keeper of the crown jewels, has elements of the fantastic and the horrible which leave the ordinary ghost story far behind.

"'I have often purposed,' he says, 'to leave behind me a faithful record of all I personally know of this strange story.

"'One Saturday night in October, 1817, about "the witching hour," I was at supper with my wife, her sister, and our little boy in the sitting room in the Jewel house. The doors were all closed, heavy and dark cloth curtains were let down over the windows, and the only light in the room was that of two candles on the table. I sat at the foot of the table, my son on my right hand, his mother fronting the chimneypiece, and her sister on the opposite side. I had offered a glass of wine and water to my wife, when, on putting it to her lips, she paused, and exclaimed, "Good G—d! what is that?" I looked up and saw a cylindrical figure, like a glass tube, seemingly about the thickness of my arm, and hovering between the ceiling and the table; its contents appeared to be a dense fluid, white and pale azure, like the gathering of a summer cloud, and incessantly mingling within the cylinder. This lasted about two minutes, when it began slowly to move before my sister-in-law; then, following the oblong shape of the table, before my son and myself; passing behind my wife, it paused for a moment over her right shoulder (observe, there was no mirror opposite to her in which she could there behold it). Instantly she crouched down, and with both hands covering her shoulder, she shrieked out, "O Christ! it has seized me!" Even now, while writing, I feel the fresh horror of that moment. I caught up my chair, struck at the wainscot behind her, rushed upstairs to the children's room, and told the terrified nurse what I had seen. Meanwhile, the other domestics had hurried into the parlor, where their mistress recounted to them the scene, even as I was detailing it above stairs.'"

SHINING EXAMPLES OF RAILROAD DEVELOPMENT

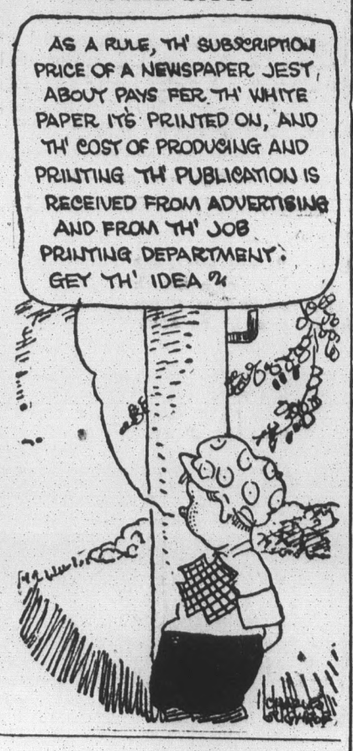

The Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe Railroads are three great western systems with traffic connections that make them truly transcontinental lines.

The annual reports of these railroads show total investments running up into the millions of dollars with their stocks and bonds owned by over 100,000 persons, including customers, employes and general investors. Due to the highest type of management these properties have been consistent dividend payers.

All of these roads have made it possible for their employes to purchase their securities on the partial payment plan. It is altogether probable that the excellent service which they render is due largely to the fact that the "owners" of the road, (the employes), are actually operating the trains and are thus interested in giving the public good service, for by so doing they know that they win the public good will, which in turn means business and steady and sure dividends for the stockholders.

Properties owned in this manner render the greatest public service on the one hand and offer the safest form of investment on the other hand.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

"ED" COOPER, JUNIOR ARRIVES AND ALL'S WELL

There's lots of hand shaking and jolly greeting going on these days 'round the office of Under-Sheriff Ed. F. Cooper, and its all because of the happy fact that another "Eddie" Cooper has arrived hearty and healthy this week. The hour was four o'clock in the morning, last Tuesday, and the newcomer weighed eight pounds. Mother and son are both doing nicely and the daddy is the proudest man in Southern California. We extend heartiest congratulations to the entire family, with an extra joyous squeeze for the bouncing Cooper Junior.

DEMISE OF MRS. MARY JENSCERE

The passing is announced of Mrs. Mary Jenscere, on June 11, at the resident, 4682 Lotus street. She was the mother of James Jenscere of Ocean Beach and Mrs. M. Hansen of Washington. The deceased was a native of Denmark, aged 80 years, 11 months, 25 days. Funeral services took place June 17 at 2 o'clock p. m., and interment was made in Masonic cemetery.

Mission Beach Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Hunt of Ostend court, are entertaining as their house guest, Mrs. Freida Rope of Denver, Colo.

Mrs. J. A. Harris of Bayside Walk gave a farewell party last Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Blake, who have since returned to their home in Fresno. The evening was spent in playing "500." Mrs. D. H. Theda and Mr. Ralph Blake won the high score and Mrs. Wm. S. Hunt and Mr. Lewis also won favors. A big supper was served, covers being laid for 16 guests. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Whitcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Blake, Ralph Jr., Raymond Harris, Kendel Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Harris. A most amusing and interesting talk was given by Mr. Blake telling of the "Japanese Bride Selection." Mr. Blake possesses extensive holdings and interests in the fruit growing industry and is well qualified on his subject when speaking of the Japanese, thru his association with the little people who are employed by the packers and growers. Their many friends hope to see the "Blake" family return to Mission Beach as permanent residents some time.

Many jolly picnic parties are seen nowadays along our ocean front and the bonfires are burning brightly in the evenings.

Mrs. W. L. Skelly entertained last Tuesday evening in honor of Dr. Paul G. Holden of N. York City Hospital, 15 young people enjoyed the wen'ier roast given on the beach and afterwards a pleasant time at the amusement center, partaking of the activities there and then back to a midnight supper served by Mrs. Skelly at her home on Nantaskett Court and Mission boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Neastraus of Glendale, Arizona, with their son, Wilbert, a graduate of the University of Arizona, visited the J. D. McCoys on Pisnio Court last Sunday.

ARMY OFFICERS DINE AND CELEBRATE AT MISSION BEACH

One of the most elaborate social functions of the week was held at the new Mission Beach Casino cafe when officers of the quartermaster corps, both active and retired, and their wives, celebrated the 150th anniversary of the organization of the corps. Covers at the affair were laid for about forty guests. Captain Ezra Davis of North Island and Capt. A. J. Chappell of Fort Rosecrans were in charge of arrangements. Since the World war officers of the quartermaster corps in all parts of the globe have held celebrations on the anniversary day.

ENSEMBLE SUITS GO STRONG; MANNISH COATS FOR JUNIORS

THE ensemble suit, from the time of its introduction, has been a success with discerning women of fashion. As a result of increased variety in design, it shows signs of becoming an established rival of the plain, mannish tailored suit, and is making a wider appeal than ever this spring. The ensemble is especially well adapted to styles in formal suits, but it has been developed lately along those very practical lines that lead to unanimous approval.

In these late versions of the ensemble, practical suitings are used for the coats which are cut on simple lines and long enough to either cover the frocks worn underneath or to allow a few inches to show. Interesting details of tailoring are introduced in these straight-hanging, practical coats, as in the large patch pockets on the coat at the right of the picture given here. These are covered with tucks, which probably contribute to the tailored finish of the frock also. Frocks to be worn with these very useful coats are made of printed silk, of plain crepe, of the material in the coat, or they reveal silk or crepe in combination with the cloth used in the coat. The frock shown in the figure at the left of the picture is severely tailored, with fashionable slit pockets at each side and bone buttons by way of finish on the skirt. These buttons emphasize the introduction of fullness in the skirt and this additional fullness and slit pockets are two late style points in the tailored mode. But the most popular frock for ensemble suits is made of printed silk and it has comfort and cheerful color to recommend it for summer wear.

Two of the Late Versions.

The coat shown in the picture introduces a little color in the simple embroidered pattern that finishes the flaring sleeves and collar and both coats are of the sort that are useful for all-round wear.

Of interest alike to youth and its elders are the handsome gayly plaided soft wool coats, which feature so definitely for sports and travel this season. Grownups are pleased to refer to their new double-breasted woolen coats, so smartly tailored, as prince of Wales models. Little folks are wearing topcoats similar in design, for an outstanding feature of children's apparel today is that it is almost amusingly a reproduction of the styles worn by mother and big sister.

The same mannish topcoats which stand for latest style to grown folks are being repeated for juniors. All the characteristic details are stressed, especially the notched collar, the double breast, with either slash or patch pockets. Yes! even the tiny boutonniere on the lapel is worn by little girls. They tiny felt hat imparts a finishing touch.

Not only is the style and cut of topcoats for children similar to that of older folks, but the materials are the same. The scope of the fabrics extends from smooth finished fabrics to softest woolens. Listed in the former are covert rep, suede-finished cloth, kasha and fine twills. Camel's-hair cloth, tweed and cheviot weaves register among the more sportslike woolens, pastel tints in these offering distinct appeal.

In some of the newer models there is some attempt to introduce a godet fullness at the front, but this idea is perhaps not as popular as the inverted plait which is often inserted at each side of the lighter-weight cloth coats. Lightweight colorful flannel coats in such shades as copenhagen, china and madonna blue, lanvin green, and that very much talked-of shade, bois de rose, are being exploited for summer wear over dainty tub frocks. Black satin-tailored types are also included in fashionable coats for juniors.

Follow Style for Older Folks.

DUCK HAWK

The Duck Hawk stood upon a great ledge. Below him, far, far below him, was the flat and even earth. But he could look down without feeling dizzy.

People who climbed great heights might feel dizzy but not the Duck Hawk, nor any member of his family.

He was standing right on the very edge too. He knew he would not fall.

He knew even if he felt like going off that ledge that he could simply spread his great wings and fly.

Then, too, his feet were so splendid and strong. He had great, enormous feet. And he was very proud of it. He didn't try to squeeze his feet or cover them up or hide them. Outspread were his feet, and so proud of them was he that he liked the name often given to the family beside that of Duck Hawk.

Many called him the Great-footed Hawk, and he was pleased with that name.

He felt that it made him seem so powerful. People might wear shoes and so try to make their feet look smaller than they were.

Or maybe they weren't foolish enough to pinch their feet, but perhaps they didn't show them off.

He wouldn't have worn shoes on his great feet. Not he. Nor would any bird or creature of the out-of-doors. He had heard of children who went bare-footed in the summer time, and he thought they were sensible.

He had heard of children, too, who were proud when they did not take small sizes of shoes.

Oh, how proud he was of his feet. He stood now upon a great ledge looking very handsome. He was a huge, enormous big fellow.

On either side of his mouth or throat was a black patch which he called his mustache. It did look as though he wore a mustache.

His waistcoat was of white with shadings of buff and speckled with smart, stylish black touches. His coat was of slate blue.

Right on the Very Edge.

It was a gorgeous coat, and his cap matched his coat, but was of a slightly darker shade.

It was not so very long since he had been a young fellow with a suitable suit of brown and tan and black. It was not well for a young fellow to dress too magnificently. That was for an older bird.

And before that he had been an egg of buff color, decorated with brown. He had been told about that. He had not remembered anything before the time he had hatched out of his shell—and he had remembered that hardly at all.

He had always liked ledges, though. It came to him naturally as even before he had been hatched forth he had been put upon a ledge without any nest to speak of at all.

His family was not one for soft, easy nests. His family liked a rugged, hard, wild, free life without cares and without responsibilities.

He had always been fearless and had always been brave.

He was like all of his family.

And he liked to fly over great stretches of splendid country. "I'm fond of the North and the West," he said. "It's so much more free and big and open, to my way of thinking. And I love the great rocks I find and the great cliffs."

He had been standing still long enough. Now he must go forth and seek his prey.

No one would get the better of him! He would get the better of any one! He would not be afraid of any one. They would be afraid of him!

He would sail forth into the splendid air, and how quickly he would fly.

No one could fly any more quickly than he could fly. Certainly not the ducks he would go after.

Not the most rapid flyer among them could get ahead of him.

He was Duck Hawk, the great, wild, splendid bird.

Any one who knew him would know that this was so.

DAILY CARE OF LINOLEUM IS IMPORTANT

Linoleum Is Easy to Keep Clean.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The housekeeper who planned this interesting method of installing a sink in one corner of a large kitchen table, has three tables, as well as the kitchen floor, all covered with linoleum on which spar varnish has been used to make it more resistant to water, heat, soap and grease. Extension workers have long been advocating the use of linoleum, treated in this way, as a permanent finish for kitchen tables, because it is so easy to keep clean.

Special attention should be given to the daily care of linoleum floor coverings, says the United States Department of Agriculture. If not given a special finish linoleum should be swept with a soft brush and dusted with an oiled or dry mop. Occasionally it should be cleaned more thoroughly with a cloth wrung out of suds made with lukewarm water and neutral soap, rinsed with clear water, and wiped dry with another cloth. Only a small space should be wet at a time, and a linoleum-covered floor should never be flooded. Strong soaps and cleaning powders that contain alkali injure linoleum and should never be used on it. Whenever any kind of cleaning powder is used on a particularly dirty spot care should be taken to remove any trace of the water in which the powder was dissolved.

Casters on heavy furniture are likely to cut into linoleum and should be replaced by glass or metal shoes having a wide bearing surface and no rough edges. In moving heavy pieces across linoleum the added precaution should be taken to place an old rug or carpet under them.

ECONOMY IN BUYING AND HANDLING FOOD

Housekeeper Must Study Various Ways of Purchasing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Economy in buying and handling food must begin, of course, in the selection of the right foods for the needs of the family, and in the purchase of this supply for the least expenditure. The housekeeper has to look into the various ways of buying available to her and apply to purchasing each kind of food the most satisfactory method for that food. Quantity orders are usually successful for staples and canned goods; club buying is a good way to get reductions on both staples and perishables; while it is sometimes better to pay the higher cost of a fractional measure of some perishable food in order to have just the right amount fresh, than to buy at a lower rate a larger quantity than one can use.

No good food should be wasted after it once enters the kitchen. The high cost of the table is sometimes traceable to the full garbage pail. It is more economical to serve small, though adequate portions, and permit second helpings to the hungry ones, than to heap up the plates, only to have uneaten food thrown away. If the housekeeper prepares the fewest possible foods necessary for each meal, and she can find out just what these foods should be if she sends to the United States Department of Agriculture for Farmers' Bulletin 1313, Good Proportions in the Diet, she will find that the family is more apt to eat up everything she has set before them than if she has a greater variety in order to cater to everybody's likes and dislikes. When the food comes to the table it should look appetizing. It takes very little time and no extra expense to garnish a platter, cover up the hot vegetables to keep them warm, or remove skin, surplus fat and gristle from meat.

All food materials can be made palatable by good seasoning. The taste of a food is no guide to its value in the diet, but a pleasing flavor aids in getting the properly selected day's foods eaten by everybody in the family. Good food materials may be wasted because of poor preparation. Scorched food is a needless waste, and with proper care it is easily prevented.

The only kind of left-overs a good manager has are those planned in advance for a definite purpose, and prepared at one cooking to save fuel. For example, a roast of meat is naturally depended on in part for cold cooked meat for luncheon or some other meal the next day; part of the cooked vegetables may be reserved for a soup or a salad, if carefully kept.

All foods must be kept clean and covered from the moment they enter the home. Perishable foods must also be kept as cool as possible. Waste due to spoilage is so unnecessary that it is almost unpardonable. Some foods must be protected in special ways to insure their good quality and safe keeping; for example, bread should be kept in a ventilated box and crackers in tight cans. For particulars on the care of each kind of food, send to the United States Department of Agriculture for Farmers' Bulletin 1374, Care of Food in the Home.

DRYING BOX IS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

This drying box in the office of home economics, Department of Agriculture, is an important source of information and instruction to the housewife. This attractive young woman is about to dry some celery and add it to the asparagus on the shelf.

Needful Essentials for Success in Making Soap

If proportions and temperatures are right you will never have a soap failure.

All oils or greases must be free from salt.

Pure coconut oil soaps cannot be made by the "salting out" process.

Hard, vigorous stirring will cause separation of the lye and grease in the cold process. Stir slowly and evenly.

Rancid greases may be purified by boiling with a solution of vinegar (one part) and water (five parts). Allow to cool, then skim off the purified grease. If rancid greases are to be used, one of the boiling processes will give better results.

If, in the boiling of paste soap, the mass should become like mucilage, add a very little salt in small amounts until it returns to its semi-fluid condition.

Lard soaps, and soaps made by the boiling process require longer ageing before they become hard and ready for use. Remember, the longer soap ages the better it will be.

Soap is most easily cut into bars by means of a very fine wire.

Sweets in the Diet

Sugar and sugary foods, such as sirup, molasses, honey, preserves, jellies, jams, marmalades, and candy, are valuable for fuel for the body and for flavor, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Brown and maple sugars, molasses, and maple sirup contain some protein and mineral substances because they have some of the other ingredients of the juice or sap left in them beside the sugar and water. Jelly and preserved fruits also contain small amounts of proteins and mineral substances. Sweets in proper amounts are an important part of the diet, provided they are served at such times as not to take away the appetite for other foods.

CUPID WAS JOCKEY

By ANNA M. SCHOLL

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

RICH and eccentric Mr. Sears had always delighted in setting the little town of Upwater by the ears, but no one dreamed of a post-mortem chuckle from the old gentleman. It came in the form of a bequest in his will—one thousand dollars to the prettiest woman in the place, the judges to be chosen from the elderly married men of the community.

The hubbub was instantaneous, and of a nature to warm the heart of a cynic. Mothers spoke jealously of the charms of their daughters. The misters prepared sermons against the sin of vanity thus flagrantly encouraged by the late Mr. Sears. The "best people" signalized their intention of standing aloof from the contest. But at last a reaction set in, started by someone's saving sense of humor, and it was almost unanimously decided that the terms of the will must be complied with. An appointed committee fixed upon a day in June for the assembling of the contestants. They were to come in their best apparel, and to abide by the vote of the judges "without murmurings or disputings." The contest was to be held out-of-doors, in the sunny garden of one of the grandees of the town, that the searching light of day might add to the impartiality of the decision. The affair was thus turned into a lawn-party, and, the first families agreeing to be present, the rest of the town followed suit.

A week before the day appointed, Richard Gordon, a young lawyer, went to call upon Mary Bennett, whose father before his invalidism had been a professor in the college town from which Gordon's family also came. Something of academic reserve and grayness pervaded the atmosphere of the little white-and-green house in the quiet side street. Richard, waiting for Mary in the dim parlor with its steel engravings of famous pictures, felt that the girl's life was somehow like them, beautiful in line and form, but lacking the color that selfishness, rather than self-denial, seems to impart to human existence. She had always sacrificed herself to the demands and needs of others, until she was like a white flower brought out of the sunshine to cheer a sick-room.

He was absorbed in thoughts of her when she entered, a welcome glowing in her eyes. Though she was tall and straight and wholesome to look upon, no one had ever called her pretty. Her features were too irregular, and she was too pale. Her chief asset was her abundant dark hair. Richard had never thought of her being in the contest, so he did not even apologize when, after a few moments' conversation, he showed her a list he had made of the women who, in his opinion, had the best chance of winning—a list from which her name was omitted.

"I thought it might amuse you to go over them with me and to sum up their points."

"I see that you have headed it with Bertha Klendenning. That is easy to understand."

"But my grounds are different from most people's," he said with the earnestness that he always brought to any subject which interested him. "Her blue eyes and yellow hair and story-book complexion count very little. It's her lovely figure and her charm of manner—her more subtle advantages, so to speak—that make her what she is, graceful and womanly."

He seemed to be absorbed in an inner vision of her. Mary sat very still, her hands clasped together, her eyes but half-lifted. He could not know, of course, that he was hurting her. She did not wish to acknowledge it even to herself, but she would have been glad if the obvious charms had had the chief significance for him. Inexperienced as she was, she knew that the spirit can establish a far greater rivalry than physical beauty.

"I quite agree with you. Who is next on the list?"

"Katherine More—it's the curve of her upper lip," he added confidentially.

"And next?"

"Dora."

"Because—?"

He laughed.

"It has something to do with the tip of her nose."

"I quite understand. Dora's nose will keep her young when she's fifty."

"And then come the ladies who have only to put on a pink ribbon to be called pretty. You see my scorn of them places them last."

"Poor things! Well, I think it will be Bertha. You must tell me all about it afterwards!"

"But, my dear, you're surely going!" he said, earnestly, knitting his boyish brows.

"I can't unless father is better."

"Oh, you must—it will amuse you so! I'll call for you to make sure!"

"Well! I don't forbid your calling!" she answered with a smile.

When he was gone she went to her room and gave herself up for the time to sad and wistful thoughts. How natural that he should regard her only as a friend and offer her only the genial courtesies of comradship. He had known her all his life, whereas he had known Bertha but a year, and novelty is an ingredient of romance.

She spent a troubled week, trying to come to terms with herself. In her dark moments she had perversely wished to make herself look as plain as possible, taking a kind of pride in being utterly out of the running; but with the first dawn of gentler feeling came the desire to look her best, and to enter into the spirit of the occasion. To appear to be not jealous was not enough. She would root jealousy from her heart.

So when the time came she curled her hair and arranged it with all the art that she could command. She put on a soft, white summer gown and a picture hat with roses. She was drawing on her long gloves when Richard arrived.

"I was prepared to use force, if I found you backing out. I have some news to tell you about myself—something that's made me very glad, and I want you to be glad with me."

Her heart sank. Was he going to tell her of his engagement to Bertha? She turned a pale face to him.

"Can't you guess, Mary?"

But she was dumb. He leaned towards her and took both her hands in his.

"I've got the position I wanted in the office with Jenkins & Bart—and it's a kind of partnership, Mary. It's easily worth twenty-five thousand a year."

She drew a long breath of relief and looked at him with shining eyes.

"I'm so glad—so glad!"

"You can't be so glad as I, because, my dear—" he hesitated. Her sudden little flame of joy again sank.

"You see I didn't want to speak until I was sure—"

Even then she would not believe. She had turned her head away. Was it Bertha—oh, was it Bertha?"

"You see I've loved you always—why Mary—!"

Then she turned a rapturous face toward him.

How they reached the appointed place she never knew. She walked on air, surrounded by a ring of gold that enclosed one other person. In her happiness she called upon the sunlight to see, and upon the west wind to witness; on the flowers in the garden to bear her company. Her eyes shone. A bright color came to her cheeks. Richard, excited and triumphant, looked at her adoringly, seeing in her at once the woman of his future and the playmate of his childhood. They would show themselves at the contest for a minute, just to be public-spirited. Then they would go for a heavenly ramble in the woods.

The judges had decided to make the award after mingling informally with their townspeople, so there was no ceremony, no drawing-up of the contestants. People strolled about or talked together in groups, as at a garden party. Here and there a girl was seen whose heightened color betrayed her consciousness of being under scrutiny, for it was generally known that the courteous judges, chatting casually with their friends and acquaintances, were all the while gleaning impressions which would be of service in making the decision. The occasion, on the whole, did not seem favorable to the setting-forth of feminine charm. Even Bertha, by becoming self-conscious, had lost something of her usual grace. Katherine's pretty bow of a mouth showed a disposition to straighten, and Dora's infantile nose failed to save the day for her. As for the young women whose charm depended on pink ribbons, they had all apparently chosen the wrong colors, and knew it when too late. Only those hopelessly out of the running seemed to be really enjoying themselves.

Richard and Mary stayed on longer than they had expected. Both had many friends, and joy, even unexpected, is a powerful magnet. But at last he put an urgent hand upon her arm.

"Come, dear," he whispered.

"We might as well wait now. They're going out—the judges. I want to know whether it is Bertha or Katherine.

"We'll know when we return—and what do we care!"

"But you were so enthusiastic last week!"

"I was only diverting myself during a tedious period of suspense."

It was expected that the judges would not remain out long, but a half-hour went by, and they were still debating in the little summer house to which they had withdrawn. A feeling of uneasiness began to make itself apparent. Bets were cancelled, and rearranged again. No one seemed as confident as at the opening of the contest. At last the judges were seen to rise, and then, two by two, they came across the lawn, and took their places on a flower-decked platform. A sudden hush fell over the assembly. The chairman waited until everyone had come within hearing distance of the stand before making his announcement, then, after reading the clause in the will, he said:

"The difficulties in the way of a fair decision can hardly be appreciated by those not members of the committee. In the making of it, in the judging and weighing, we crave your clemency. Having made it we are sure of your enthusiastic support. The prize has been awarded to Miss Mary Bennett."

There was a confused murmur. Richard, more surprised than anyone, turned to look at Mary. It was true! It might be gone tomorrow, but today her radiant joy made her the most beautiful woman there. She seemed all light and color and happiness, and they had felt it and recorded it.

She would not believe it at first, and wanted to hurry away, but they detained her and showered congratulations on her until she was glowing like a rose. Each moment enriched her, adding weight to the decision.

"You were a dark horse," said a friend, at once puzzled and convinced.

"Cupid was jockey," said Richard.

Comes to Life as He Hears Funeral Plans

Madisonville, Ky. — Roscoe Qualls, nine, lying in his bed unable to move, heard his parents give him up for dead and plan his funeral. Now he is recovering after hours of near distraction at the thought of being buried alive.

Roscoe fell while skating. Paralysis devolped. He lost his speech and was kept alive several days by administration of liquid food. Then apparently he died.

Parents and relatives mourned and began planning the funeral. Roscoe said he heard it all. A physician was called for a final examination and found the boy still breathing. Now he is able to sit up in bed.

STARVING GOAT EATS UP CHECKS

Novel Caper Proves Costly to Eastern Financiers.

New York.—The appetite of a goat in Asia, which several weeks ago showed a fondness for paper, led to the necessity of a strict watch on all checks cashed by one of Wall street's larger banks. Also, it caused a considerable waste on the part of America's largest international commercial house of money, which was expended in cabled messages between New York and the Far East.

The international commercial house had made out a $25 check, drawn on the Bank of Manhattan company, for the account of a Far Eastern firm. The firm in question received the check and was prepared to cash it. But the goat got it. The animal apparently had such an appetite, it was explained by Raymond E. Jones, president of the New York bank, that it found the piece of paper in some unexplained manner and ate it.

The international commercial house was promptly informed and, after close investigation, it made out a duplicate check for $25, which it forwarded to the proper address. It then had to cable full instructions to New York, giving the number and series, the bank upon which drawn and the amount of the check. This information in turn was relayed to the Bank of Manhattan company, which, as a matter of policy, put in operation its full machinery to safeguard against the possibility of the original check coming through. This, however, is regarded unlikely. It was sworn by the proper authorities that the goat had masticated the check as thoroughly as if it had been torn into bits.

The total cost to all persons concerned in time and money, was estimated by one authority on banking and commercial practice to have been $450.

Dope Users Increasing Among Professional Men

Philadelphia.—"If Director Butler has done nothing else, since taking charge of the police department in this city, he has made dope so hard to get that the 'bootleg' price has advanced from $35 to $150 an ounce," A. O. H. de la Gardia, chief of the Federal narcotic office here, said.

The report of the narcotic office for the last year, Mr. de la Gardia added, will show an increase in the number of arrests of drug addicts.

"Addiction to drugs is fast disappearing among the Chinese in this country, until now it has become an American evil, particularly with reference to opium smoking.

"American professional men are becoming the greatest addicts to the drug habit. The percentage of drug addicts among physicians and druggists is greater than among any other professional class. The theatrical profession also is permeated with drug users."

11-Year-Old Lad Saves Infant From Drowning

Brescia, Italy.—The heroic rescue of a two-year-old baby by an eleven-year-old boy recently was enacted here. The child had wandered away from its governess and fallen from a terrace on the border of a nearby lake into the water, which at that place was about twelve feet deep. Hearing the cries for help which the nursemaid set up on discovering the baby's plight, Pietro Negrinelli, eleven, rushed to the scene and, not stopping to disrobe, threw himself into the water. He seized the baby's dress with his teeth and struggled with his burden to a nearby rock, where he held on, exhausted, until bystanders were able to lift the pair onto dry land.

Kills Man; Sleeps

Hammond, Ind. — Thirty minutes after he had shot and killed John Mastinez at Indiana Harbor Vincent Gomez signed a written confession, the police say.

The killing was the outcome of a trivial quarrel. After the shooting Gomez went home to bed, where the police found him.

Fall Is Fatal

Chicago.—Mrs. Euedinia Athens, forty, of 7673 Exchange avenue, lies dead as the result of internal injuries which she suffered when she fell on the stairs in her home. Mrs. Athens was near the top of the stairs when she fell, and rolled to the bottom.

Brotherhood Cannot Be Made Compulsory

Brotherhood is like poets and slogans: it is born and not made.

There are two kinds of brotherhood—one that binds people who are by nature congenial and one that binds those who are comrades in arms, is the assertion of a writer in the Baltimore Sun. The first is a product of taste and the other a product of partisanship. In both cases we love our brother for the same reason that we enjoy victuals that agree with us.

All religions impose an obligation to love fellow believers. All civilized men make some effort to encourage a spirit of fraternity. Yet one is at liberty to doubt whether any of these efforts has materially altered human relationships.

True, any club or lodge or other organization may bring together kindred spirits and thus widen each man's acquaintance among his own kind and add to his happiness; but if one who finds the organization's members uncongenial is by some mischance enrolled among them, neither pledge of brotherhood nor sense of duty can make him like them more.

Blood brothers fight; the fact of their brotherhood cannot make them congenial. If these cannot love one another in conformity with the obligations imposed by their kinship what reason is there to believe that men of different breeds can learn to love one another merely by willing to do so?

The man who has a sincere desire to love his fellows may rid himself of the selfishness and narrowness and conceit that now conspire to give him a lone-wolf complex, and may in humility and patience reconcile himself to all mankind; but to the last he will continue to avoid persons who do not agree with him and to court those whose opinions dovetail with his.

The ego admits to brotherhood only those who conform. You do not in truth love a comrade in arms; you love yourself and your cause, and accept him as a brother solely because he is grinding your ax.

Love isn't a product of will or pledge; it happens.

Marvelous Sea Plants

One of the most thoroughly equipped sea-going expeditions ever organized is studying the mysterious Sargasso sea, originally discovered by Columbus. This remarkable sea is covered by a huge gathering of seaweeds, a floating mass of vegetable growth extending for nearly 260,000 square miles, around which the North Atlantic slowly revolves. Numerous air bladders, like small berries, keep the plants afloat. Seaweeds thrive chiefly in the 100-fathom limit—within 600 feet of the surface—but small and almost invisible forms are found everywhere in the ocean. Round British coasts a primitive variety is seen in the bright green and hair-like "crow-silks"; but no essential difference exists between the small weeds and the immense growths found in Pacific waters. Thicker than the trunk of a large tree, the gigantic stems of seaweed near Tierra del Fuego attain the astonishing length of 400 feet. Huge fronds resemble the spreading leaves of tropical palms. There are extensive sub-ocean forests of kelp, and floating islands of weeds swarming with live animals often measuring 8 feet from base to tip. Seaweeds multiply chiefly by means of spores, but near land the waves render unique assistance.

Trained Mouse

John Tierney, a night watchman in a factory in Geneva, N. Y., claims to have been successful in training a mouse to come when called, the call being the rattle of his dinner pail at midnight when he gets ready for his dinner. When the mouse made its first appearance he gave it some bits of food, next night he rattled the lid against the pail and in a short time the mouse appeared and was fed, and each night since he has found the mouse appearing shortly after the dinner rattle was sounded, so he claims a mouse may be trained to do a certain thing and repeat it over and over if one appeals to its appetite and is patient.

Rubbing It In

"I hain't going to take my children to the circus no more!" declared Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"Then you think it is detrimental to their morals?" asked the presiding elder.

"Nope; but tuther day at Mauck & Mauckenfuss' Consolidated Museum, Equescurriculum and Hippolympiad in mighty union with Dockerell's Parisian Circus and Sanger's English Menagerie, when the old clown came out and begun to cut up his durn foolishness all of my smaller kids yelled, 'There's paw! There's paw!'"—Kansas City Star.

Desert Air Service

A project for the beginning in July, 1925, of a cross-desert air service from Ramleh, Palestine, to Basrah, Iraq, as a link in the London-to-Bombay route, is under discussion in London. The plan proposes to cover the 900 miles between the two cities in one day, with a brief halt in Bagdad. The cost for passenger transportation is estimated at £20 (roughly, $100).

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

Clever Thief Detector

Valuable metal had a habit of disappearing from a German factory recently, so a clever scientific thief detector was rigged up by the physicists connected with the works. At the end of the day's work each employee was required to remove his knife and other metallic personal possessions from his pockets and pass through a specially constructed gateway. This was so wired that any concealed metal being taken away illicitly would make itself known by inducing a current in a device that emitted a loud warning signal for the guard's benefit. The loss of metal has decreased markedly since the construction of the device.

Peru Fosters Industries

The government of Peru is considering the issuance of several "patentes de introduccion," which constitute a recent innovation in Peru. Under these grants a company of individual undertaking the establishment of a new industry in Peru, that is, the manufacture of some article not previously manufactured in the country, is assured by the government that no one else may start a competing industry within a term of years, although importation of the article may continue. The purpose, of course, is to foster the development of new industries.

World's Largest Book

Vienna claims the biggest book in the world. It is in the Dominican cloister carefully mounted in a case in one of the corridors. The book is made up of parchment leaves mounted on thin wooden borders. On the parchment is maintained a death list of the cloister. The first entry was made in 1410, but even this date is 184 years more recent than the date of the cloister, for this home of Dominican monks was founded in 1226, under the Babenbergers.

Let Tanlac restore your health

IF your body is all fagged-out and run-down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor.

Tanlac Restored Her Health

"Typhoid fever reduced me to 95 lbs. and left me weak as a rag. Failing to get relief from other sources I tried Tanlac and after 6 bottles had gained 20 lbs. Now I enjoy a fine appetite and feel like a new woman. As a nurse I give Tanlac to all my patients."

Mission Beach Notes

Mrs. G. Brunton entertained the ladies "V Z" class of the First Baptist church, last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Clara Love of Huntsville, Alabama is spending a couple of weeks with her sister-in-law Mrs. Z. T. Ives of San Diego. She was the guest of honor at a Beach party given by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Luke of Rockaway court last week. Mrs. Love expressed herself as being very pleased with the climate and surroundings of Mission Beach and prophesies a splendid future for the new resort.

The Smith Hughes Millinery Class held its last meeting at Shirley Cottage Friday. The class expressed itself as being more than satisfied with the results brought forth by Miss Green, whose kindness and thoroughness throughout instruction was appreciaed by all. There is much anticipation for the opening of the fall class in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, uncle and aunt of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hurley who have been visiting them this week, have returned to their hame in Los Angeles. They are very much interested in Mission Beach and will return soon to buy property here.

We had the pleasure of the company of our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Smith, our own Editors of "The Beach News" at the Tuesday night meeting and entertainment of the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stephenson of Pacific Beach, visited the R. J. Hurleys on Mission boulevard last Monday evening.

Mr. Fred Jennings spent last week in Los Angeles on a combined business and pleasure trip.

Mrs. Geo. McCance of 3736 Bayside Walk, who is a new and permanent resident here, has been entertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ryun of Denver, Colo., who have just left for their home by motor, taking Maxine, the little granddaughter, back with them for a summer vacation.

Let me illustrate with Elbert Hubbards world known quotation—"Results" for us here on the Beach if we "persist" in building up a better place. "If a man writes a better book, preaches a better sermon, or makes a better mouse trap than his neighbor, tho he builds his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce

"UNION METAL"
URGED FOR LIGHT STANDARDS
ON MISSION BEACH

By Mrs. F. G. Greenfield

The Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce held a rousing reception at its regular meeting held Tuesday evening at "Shirley Cottage." Fully 150 guests were present. It opened at usual with the busines meeting and reports from heads of the executive committee. Dr. R. V. Jones explained to us the merits of the "Union Metal Standard," selected by the excutive committee and passed by the members of the chamber and asking them not to sign any more petitions relative to light posts, as it would only tend to bungle things up—and prevent us from obtaining our proper lighting system. Nothing will be done for us if we are not persistent in demanding our rights and sticking to the one selection. City Manager Rhodes must have only one petition stating fully our demand in lighting arrangement and signed by a majority of boosters and owners of Mission Beach property. By putting our whole attention to this subject right now, we can force our issue. There must be no delay, for the lights are needed this year. Let every one insist on "Union Metal Standards" only, with the twenty year guarantee, covering all incidentals, and at the same cost as other types with no guarantee. Mr. Hanson and Mr. Liftchild of the executive committee were to have made reports to the members, but failed to attend. We are awaiting with interest any reports they may make, giving us an idea of their efforts and if more assistance is needed to get our Beach cleaned up and ready for guests, we want to know at once, in order that all conditions may be remedied.

The possibility of retaining the present pier structure between the Amusement Center and the inlet bridge was announced by Kirk Smith, editor of "The Beach News" and the permanancy of the affair was referred to the improvement committee for early action.

After the business meeting Mrs. Josephine Schulze, head of the entertainment committee, presented a fine program, including the following artists of home talent (which was greatly enjoyed by all) and a vote of thanks was extended to those who participated on the program and provided for the entertainment as a whole.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT

Piano—"Spinning Song," "Told in the Firelight" (encore) by Miss Bettina Greenfield.

J. D. Pritchard, speaking—"Evolution."

Mrs. Lawrence Edw. Anderson, solo—"Mighty Lak a Rose," "Smiling Through" (encore).

Miss Lilamae Teal, recitation—"Fourteen-Ninty-Two," "A Mortifying Mistake," (encore).

Alvin Thomas, solo—"Banjo Solo" (encore), accompanied by Mrs. Josephine Schulze on the piano.

Mrs. Bailey, solo—Coon Songs, "Lament," (with encore.)

Alvin Thomas, banjo; Lawrence Schulze, saxaphone; Mrs. . Thomas, piano; music by the trio.

The two little girls Lilamae Teal and Bettina Greenfield performed their parts with ease and grace. Children, indeed are developing thru the schools and homes, today a fine sense of composure, that was lacking in the education of the old school methods. We hope to encourage more of the youthful talent at our entertainments.

Mr. Pitchard's joking talk on "Evolution" was received with much applause. He told the 50 year old tale of "The House That Jack Built," showing the evolution of the English language and how that same story would be told in modernized speech. It was a most laughable bit of humor. Illustrating again, by a burlesque of "Yard long imitation" the ancient chinese language, ending the answer by one English word. He agreed with Mr. Bryan and Mr. Thede that "Monkeys really never decended from man. We shall call upon Mr. Pritchard for more of his humorous stories in the future.

Mrs. Anderson's solos were like her charming self, most sweet and interesting, and we are glad to welcome her as a new and permanent resident of our community.

Mr. Thomas's banjo kept our feet a tapping and took us literally off our chairs longing to keep step to his lively times.

Mrs. Baileys coon song is a "real one" and one sure thinks of "Dixie" when her soft deep voice carries us on with the negro lament.

CHAPTER XXXIII

A PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

Charter Ordinance No. 49 provided for a street railway franchise. It was passed and approved by the Board of Trustees of the city of San Diego, December 15, 1879, published in the San Diego Union January 1, 1880. Among other rights-of-way granted thereby, the following is of interest to Point Lomans:

". . . thence in a northerly direction along said Moore street in old San Diego to a point where said Moore street intersects with Ampudia street; thence . . . in a westerly direction along the public traveled highway to a point on the easterly boundary line of Roseville where said highway intersects and connects with Main street in Roseville; thence in a westerly direction from said point on said eastern boundary, along said Main street in Roseville to the public traveled highway between Roseville and La Playa to a point where said public highway intersects with the eastern end of San Antonio avenue in the said La Playa; thence along said San Antonio avenue in a westerly direction to the western terminus of the said San Antonio avenue and the western boundary of said La Playa."

Although it was more than forty years before the street railway actually ran along the "public traveled highway" through Roseville out to La Playa, some of the privileges and limitations outlined in this old franchise still held good.

In the spirit of good-natured fun rather than of biting sarcasm, the following editorial by Douglas Gunn presents a local picture:

"The great and closing storm of the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine will never be forgotten by the oldest inhabitant. Among recent purchasers of real estate it will ever be known as 'the big storm of the year I bought those lots in Manassee & Schiller's addition.' (Loma Portal, roughly speaking.) Bad as the effect of this storm has been upon the streets and roads near town, the greatest damage has been done to the nearly finished 'depot' and 'turntable' of the new Transcontinental Air-line railroad. The torrents of water coming down the Switzer canyon completely washed away the big pit which had been dug, at great expense, for the mammoth 'turn-table' which was nearly ready for the new locomotives built expressly for this road by the Point Loma and Coronado Iron Works. The rush of water was so impetuous and terrific as to carry the pit, 'turn-table' and all, bodily out to sea.

And so Editor Gunn goes on, laughing at the forlorn hope that the hopes of a railroad terminus had become; yet before the year was out the "California Southern" railway had actually begun to exist here.

During January of 1880, Professor David Starr Jordan, "in behalf of the United States fish commissioners' bureau at Washington," was actively engaged in the discharge of his duties at his headquarters at the foot of Fifth street. The main object of his visit was to gather specimens of all the varieties of fish to be found in this immediate vicinity and to forward them in alcohol to the National Museum at Washington. Among the specimens collected were varieties of rayed fish (sting-rays) theretofore unknown to science. Professor Jordan was obliged to rely chiefly upon the Chinese fishermen for specimens, which were mainly such as could be taken with seines in the bay or found in the holes in rocks at low tide around Point Loma.

The Union of January 14, 1880, publishes a most interesting report of the investigations of Professor Jordan whose work here was then drawing to a close:

"The variety and quantity of fishes in our day," the professor said, "is being constantly and rapidly diminished by Chinamen with their fine-meshed nets; and unless proper steps are taken to prevent the wholesale destruction of young fish now going on, all the valuable food fishes will soon become extinct. It is very generally supposed that the fishes abounding in the bay of San Diego are migratory—that they are constantly coming and going, like the tides, from and to the ocean, and that any attempts to reduce their numbers would be like attempting to reduce the waters of the bay itself. This is a great mistake. On the contrary, the bay fishes are not migratory or deep water sea fishes at all. They never leave the bay alive except in the nets of the Chinamen, but live and spawn here, and the most stringent measures should be taken for their protection, as with a large population here in the near future, a proper and abundant fish diet becomes an important matter both in a physical view and as a factor in domestic economy.

The musical trio are to be thanked for their generous time and the fine dance music, which they played for the entertainment of the crowd. The party ended with dancing.

The entertainment committee in the meantime surprised the guests with coffee and wafers served buffet style. A very joyous get-acquainted time was had by all.
